Vermont	https://vtvettechs.org/76-2/	All certified technicians (CVT's) in Vermont must have attended and graduated from an accredited AVMA Veterinary Technology program, they must have passed the VTNE (Veterinary Technician National Exam), or have been part of our grandfathered technician group that had set requirements prior to 2007. Once the applicant has graduated from an AVMA accredited school and passed the VTNE the applicant is able to apply for certification. Our certification coordinator will verify your application, diploma, and VTNE scores and then if all is in order she will send you a welcome letter and bylaws. The President will then send you certification certificates (one for your records and one to display at your place of work.) You will then have two years to accumulate 18 CE credits (6 online credits are allowed) to maintain your certification. Membership has annual dues, but certification credits are accrued in two year stretches to allow members to go to bigger meetings and get a lot of credits at one time.	https://aavsb.org/vtne-overview/verify-your-eligibility	The AAVSB reviews and determines VTNE eligibility for AVMA or CVMA accredited veterinary technology graduates.
